The player connects to the server and requests a common goal check.
The server checks through his controller if the common goal was accomplished or not and notifies both the current player and the other clients.
If the common goal wasn't accomplished, the server notifies again both player and other clients with a <NotAccomplished> message, then it returns.